The Bowls Game that Delayed a Sea Battle…

That swashbuckling sailor Sir Francis Drake brought bowls into the nautical sphere in 1588 when, upon hearing of the approach of the Spanish Armada, he refused to set sail with the British Fleet until he had finished his game of Bowls on Plymouth Hoe. The truth was that the tide and wind were wrong for them to put to sea, so he had to wait - but it makes a great story! (Later, when conditions were right, he defeated the Armada by sailing burning ships into their fleet.) Whilst bowls normally require a green about 40m long, our mini carpet set can be played indoors with as little as 4m space. It consists of eight weighted and biased injection-moulded bowls of 5cm diameter, a white jack, and instructions. Simple to play, but skill shows - and enjoyed by all ages.

Square Cargo Oil Lamp

A sturdy brass lamp that was, for years, the only approved lantern for use in cargo holds. It offers all-round illumination, with convenient fittings for suspending from ropes or wall brackets. This oil lamp is also suitable for tealights with the burner unit removed. 25cm tall (excluding handle).

4106 Brass Cargo Oil Lamp, 25cm.

Dome-Topped Anchor Lamps

The Nauticalia anchor lamp - traditionally hung from the mast and able to burn all night to warn other vessels whilst at anchor - is made to the style still used by some international shipping as a reserve in case of electrical failure. Made from solid brass and copper with a dioptric glass lens, and the handles at top and bottom incorporate a rope fixing ring. The oil burner unit can be removed to allow use with a tealight if required. Measures 29cm tall.

4145 Brass/Copper Anchor Oil Lamp, 29cm.

Brass ‘Chief’ Cargo Lamp

A sturdy brass lamp that was, for years, the only approved lantern for use in cargo holds. It offers all-round illumination, with convenient fittings for suspending from ropes or wall brackets. Electric version requires an E14 25W bulb and is supplied with UK plug.

4057 Chief Cargo Electric Lamp, brass.

Oil Miner's Lamp

The miner's safety lamp was designed by the mining engineering genius Sir Humphrey Davy, to withstand handling in arduous conditions. Sailors too have found their virtues invaluable: they are wind resistant and have quarter-inch (5mm) glass. Though illumination is limited, it is an ideal night light on boats which must conserve battery power. Measures 24cm tall. Polished brass and copper construction. Burn time 8hrs. Uses 4mm round wick oil burner.

Brass Spitfire on Stand

Churchill's famous tribute to RAF Fighter Command is inscribed on the plaque - the finishing touch to this emotive piece of sculpture. Cast in solid brass and heavily burnished by hand, it celebrates the genius of the Spitfire's designer, RJ Mitchell. Even today the sight of one of the few remaining 'Spits' soaring into and swooping out of the blue quickens the pulse and swells the heart. Capturing and preserving some of that magic is what this magnificent model is all about. Wingspan 23cm, overall height 18cm.

The Original Paratrooper's 'Cricket'

The ACME No. 470 Clicker, or 'Cricket' as it became known, was conceived in the 1920s as a time-keeping device for musicians, but was adopted in 1944 by US paratroopers who needed a way of discreetly identifying friendly forces after landing behind enemy lines at night. 7,000 were supplied ahead of the D-Day invasion, very few of which now survive and are expensive antiques. Our authentic replica is made in the UK by the same company, on the actual tooling and machines used in 1944. It is superb quality and almost indistinguishable from the originals. Nowadays, they also serve as a useful dog training aid. Supplied wartime-style cardboard box with certificate of authenticity.

Storm Lighter

Originally made by soldiers in the trenches in World War I from spent bullet cases, seafarers adopted this practical brass petrol lighter. The sliding stormguard shields the flame, even in a strong wind. When lowered it operates a snuffer extinguishing the flame and protecting the wick from spray. With positive flint control. 8cm long.

Glass Fishing Floats

Glass Fishing Floats

Encased in netted rope, these hollow floating coloured glass spheres were used to support fishermen's nets and to mark lobster pots for retrieval from the seabed. Today they are commonly used as interesting decor. Each is hand-blown to create an authentic bullseye at the cut-off point - no two are identical (hence measurements are approximate).

Ocean Explorer Globes

In the 16th-18th centuries, ocean pioneers were the celebrities of the age. Figures such as Drake, Magellan, and Cook discovered new lands, facilitated trade, and spread power and influence around the globe. Their reputation and achievements are so embedded in our history that they remain household names to this day. So when we sat down to name our ranges of globes, these were the obvious choice. Metal fittings are antique or black finished plated aluminium. Wooden bases are steamed beech.
